Let's talk about Grooming

My owner always takes a few hours off every month and “ goes to the beauty shop”. She seems to return more relaxed and thinks that she looks better. It makes her day happier and gives her a good attitude when she comes home and deals politely with all my brothers and sisters. She says that every month or so I seem to have a “bad hair day” Just when I am getting real comfortable and lazy being a big fuzz ball I get to go see Mr. Rick at High-Stone Pet Lodge. My owner tells me that Mr. Rick owns Scottish Terriers and works on them quite a lot, making them beautiful. She says that his background in the dog world makes him a rare commodity in that he is a groomer, professional handler, breeder, and overall nice guy. You can look at a photo of one guy that visited Mr. Rick, and see the tremendous difference in the before and after photos. You can also stop by the salon and look at other before and after photos, as well as some of Mr. Rick's show dogs. Somehow Mr. Rick took a dog that reminded me of the tramp from Lady and the Tramp and turned him into a proud, clean resident of Park cities. Wow, what a difference a day makes when you get to spend that day with Mr. Rick getting the full spa treatment. This includes a bath with all natural floral shampoo, a hypoallergenic conditioner, manicure and pedicure, ear cleaning, and a relaxing message.

I didn't know all that was available at High-Stone! I thought High-Stone was just an overnight bed and breakfast hotel with a great place to play in the day care area. (Now it includes a Day of Beauty, bath, or a full groom.) I always get to play when I go to High-Stone, eat fresh Bil-Jac premium food, and spend the night with my friends when my owners go out of town. But, the day they come home, I get the special treatment by Mr. Rick. I am transformed from the shaggy little dog that I am to a regal show type dog after my bath, shampoo, and drying. I really do like the feel of a comb rubbing my back. I overheard my owner and Mr. Rick talking about this new shedding tool called the Fuzz Master. My black lab friend was up at High-Stone and he was the guinea pig for this new tool. His owner was so excited that she called the next day to compliment Mr. Rick for helping her dog's shedding problem. If you have a dog that sheds ask Mr. Rick about the fuzz master. I know that when I get groomed my owners feel that I am something special and they take me to places and show me off. I even got to drink half a latte at Starbucks in Highland Park village a week ago because they were proud of my new hair cut. I got to ride in the front seat with my head out the window. I was so proud! They were so proud! I now know why my owner feels on top of the world when she goes to the beauty shop. Come and see Mr. Rick for your new summer “do.”

Speaking of Mr. Rick here he is with Isabelle at the Fort Worth Dallas Dog shows. He made her look so beautiful that she won a blue ribbon.

I HAVE A CHIP....

“Let me tell you about the tiny thing in my neck”

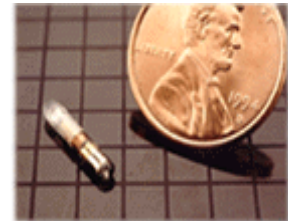

Well now that spring is here, the pretty girl dogs are looking for me. I am so sure that is why I wonder off sometimes. My owner says I can smell them for miles, and she is afraid that I would keep on walking and sniffing trees and bushes and lose my way home. I would know my house any where. After all, my special bed and toys are there. So she took me to see my special friend (I think they call it a Veterinary Clinic), but I love Dr. Terry he gives me special treats. Well he put this special chip in my neck so my owner would be comforted in knowing that if some one found me they would wave this special wand over me and they would know instantly that I have a home and a special family waiting for me. This TINY thing in my neck is called a “MICROCHIP”

The Microchipping is a quick process that fits between my shoulders. Now I have my own unalterable ID code that emits a signal on a specific radio frequency that will help locate my owners. Wow, do you think other dogs will know I am coming around before they see me or smell me? Dr. Terry said it was a special thing to do, because collars come off. Dr. Terry said that 12,000 shelters in America and veterinarians will know who my family is. You can see this picture of how small my Chip is, and everywhere don't feel a thing.

Next issue I will be talking about getting ready for summer, things like summer hair-do's and flea prevention. Regular grooming and care can help keep you flea free...it does for me. When the weather changes and it gets warmer, those nasty little bugs come creeping out. I don't want them on me and I know my mom doesn't want them in her house. She would skin my hide if I gave fleas to my brothers and sisters. Also, don't forget the upcoming holidays of Memorial Day and Fourth of July. High-Stone is always busy so be sure to make reservations now. Our new Luxury Suites are limited and will definitely be full during the holidays. Make your appointments early, this goes for grooming too. You'll want to be looking as good as me for company, so get in to see Mr. Rick.

Till Next Time,
Charles
